

Home / Archives / No. 24 (2024): Digital/Electronic Literature from the USA: Theories, Forms and Practices

No. 24 (2024): Digital/Electronic Literature from the USA: Theories, Forms and Practices

Edited by Andrea Pitozzi and Mario Verdicchio
Published: 2024-12-20

Articles: Special Section

Digital/Electronic Literature from the USA: Theories, Forms and Practices

An Introduction

Andrea Pitozzi, Mario Verdicchio

The Art of Generative Narrativity

Dejan Grba, Vladimir Todorović

It Do the Poets in Different Voices

Generative AI Voices, the Uncanny, and the Poetry Audio Archive

Chris Mustazza

Text Generation and Other Uneasy Human-Machine Collaborations

J. R. Carpenter

Editing a Difficult Text with the TEI

The Case of The Cantos

Robin Seguy

“The American Hypertext Novel”

Surpassing Hyperfiction through Michael Joyce’s Twilight: A Symphony

Vasileios N. Delioglanis

Articles (general section) - English language and linguistics

AI-Driven Intralingual Translation across Historical Varieties

Theoretical Frameworks and Examples from Early Modern English

Fabio Ciambella

Emerging Trends in the Register of Persuasion Considering Appraisal in English

Anna Zanfei

Articles (general section) - American language, literature, and culture

La Collana Il Nuovo Mondo e le sue fonti

Emilio Gianotti

Negotiating Pride and Vulnerability in Maud Howe’s Roma Beata – Letters from the Eternal City

Agnese Marino

Active Agencies of Compromise

Hawthorne and the European Limits of the American Romance

Giuseppe Nori

Language

English

Italiano

Information

For Authors

For Librarians